POSITION STATEMENT

Apparatus Driver Training

The VCOS Recommends that all Emergency Agency Apparatus Drivers be licensed and certified by their respective states and agencies specific to the type of apparatus. It is imperative that focused education and training be performed in the initial stages of the driver qualification process and that emergency agencies must maintain and perform continual driver education and training.

Further, the VCOS recommends that emergency service agencies encourage their respective states to adopt minimum driver license requirements based on specific vehicular gross vehicle weight/type/length
